No other city has changed its face so fast in the past 100 years as Berlin. First of all, until World War I it developed to a metropolis, in the 1930s it experienced the megalomania of Hitler and finally the damage of World War II. Rebuilding, the constitution of the Berlin Wall, the building development of border strip and government district created a new city. The book shows the change of the city centre from the 18th to the 21st century by comparing historical material with new photographs. Everyone whos interested in history and art, every tourist and every resident of Berlin will be fascinated.
